Aeroplanes are slowly driving me mad. I live near an airport, and sound of passing planes can be heard night and day. The airport was built during the war, but for some reason it could not be used then. Last year, however, it came into use. Over a hundred people must have been driven envoy from their homes by the noise. I am one of the few people left in the locality. Sometimes I think this house will be knocked down by a passing plane. I have been offered a large sum of money to go away, but I am determined to stay here. Everybody says I must be mad, and they are probably right.
