

Prologue

This workshop is designed for those who are intending to embark on a research program. This workshop will introduce young researchers and their supervisors to the system and, by increasing their understanding, help them improve the choice of university, institution, department, area of research and supervisor.

Research students can immensely benefit by participating in this activity as the techniques, skills and processes, crucial for conducting research and obtaining the highest research degrees will be extensively discussed.

The research supervisors and those contemplating to becoming one, will also find this workshop relevant as it will cover essentially all processes that are necessary for the successful completion of students' research degrees.

This workshop will be focused on processing issues which are not discipline-specific. It will also provide the academic administrators a guide to procedures and system concerned with research degrees.
